

The Revd. Robert Findlay's mother was BARBARA HODGERT, and in 1745 he married Miss Annabella Paterson whose mother was ANNABELLA HODGERT, one of Barbara's sisters. The following shows their ancestry as tabulated in various places in the Red Book, and now brought together.

HODGERT (Red Book p.179).

(pencil note: See Glasgow Protocol Vol.7, p.35, 36). Referring to pages 5, 12, 16 and 39, I am indebted to Alexander Gray Buchanan for the following information. His letters are deposited in my Deed box. I think we may fairly assume that the first mentioned in the Glasgow Commissary records, James Hogiszaird, was father of the first Robert, from whom our line evidently descends, and all the more, as Robert called his eldest son James according to old Scottish custom. Indeed it appears I think probable that he was the Ancestor of all those mentioned in the commissary records etc., although it is impossible to give a complete statement of their respective relationships. An inspection of dates etc. will shew that he alone of all those mentioned could have been the Common Ancestor of this old and respectable Glasgow family

Pencil note: z = y in old Scotch.
